of the fibest organizations in the country is the Shaits of America. No one can estimate the value the good deeds and molded characters this organization has ashieved in the United States since 1909.

Bespite its worth, the Boy Scouts organization has be pure a tremendous influence on the American scene bereatingly enough, it had a happen-so beginning. Wilm D Boyce a Chicago publisher, was in London on a recy foggy day in 1908 and, as he stood uncertainly on the sidewalk, wondering which way to go, a small boy ofbered to show him the way.

Mr. Boyce gave the boy the address he was seeking and the scout delivered him to the address. Mr. Boyce ried to give the boy a shilling. He refused to accept it and said. "A scour never takes money for courtesies."

Mr. Boyce became so interested in the scout and his organization that he visited its headquarters and met Sir Robert Baden Powell and learned about the scout organiration. He returned to the United States and, in 1909, start. stration or other agency. ed the organization of the Boy Scouts of America.

Today there stands in Gilwell Park, in England, prouze statue of a buffalo, the gift of the Boy Scouts of PAY VISIT TO America, on which this inscription is printed: "To the STATE MARCH 22 unknown scout whose faithful performance of the daily good turn brought the scout movement to America."

Since the beginning of the scout movement in this country inst a little over forty years ago, more than five million boys have received scout training and beginning with President Taft, each president of the United States has been in the parade, lunch with Gov.
